Collaborations of Man and Nature

The work in this show is not representative of just this year's labor, but rather a culmination of ideas and directions that have been germinating for years. As a new source of inspiration, I find myself more influenced by my family. Over the past few years as my children have discovered the world around them, it has provided an exciting rediscovery for me. Their excitement about animals, clouds, water, all the simple natural things that they see and interact with, has been refreshing for my artists eye, and allowed me to regain the excitement that they are feeling. Many of these new works have varying degrees of influences that relate to the current state of being a father and an artist.
