WILL ROBINSON

RESONANCE

Will Robinson is a seasoned stone sculptor with an exhibition history spanning over two decades. Foster/White Gallery is delighted to present these new works which showcase Will's innate relationship with nature. Raised in the Pacific Northwest, he was influenced throughout his youth collecting trees, wood, and rock on remote nature hikes with his father.

In Resonance, he showcases a unique pairing of hard objects transformed by soft lines, shapes, and a variety of textures. The work speaks of adventure and discovery while holding the warmth of home. Will encourages the public to interact and engage with the stone to fully appreciate our relationship with simple, natural things and find our own inspiration daily.

Robinson was born in Bremerton, Washington and studied History at the University of Washington. His stone sculptures are in private and public collections worldwide.
