DREW BURNHAM

Drew Burnham is an established Canadian painter, well-known for his unique stylized realist portrayal of the Coastal British Columbia landscape. Vivid colour, stylized form, and glazed painted lines make his paintings leap to life - the paintings seem to pulse with an inherent rhythm as the artist employs his own highly recognizable visual vocabulary. With an ever-increasing demand for his work, Burnham has experienced sold-out shows for over 10 years.

Burnham trained with Don Jarvis and Toni Onley and studied architectural rendering as well as Fine Art at the Vancouver School of Art (now Emily Carr University of Art + Design) and at the University of Victoria. Burnham's paintings are in many private and corporate collections including the City of Vancouver, Edmonton Art Gallery, Athabaska University and Polygon Development. He has received many awards including two Canada Council Short Term Grants. Burnham continues to live and paint out of his home and studio on Vancouver Island, British Columbia.
