CHRIS TEMPLE

A graduate of the Ontario College of Art, Chris Temple has been capturing the complexity and sublimity of urban and natural environments for over 30 years. Indeed, Temple describes himself as a landscape painter whose particular fascination with the urban has prompted explorations all over North America and Europe in search of the “urban core compression, intricate infrastructure, and industrial decay that [he] finds so interesting to ponder.” Temple’s technically precise paintings render city and mountains scenes with both strength and delicacy; they are familiar, yet mysterious, and always reverent of contemporary landscape as an endless source of visual interest.

Chris Temple has exhibited extensively across Canada, and is featured in prominent collections of institutions such as the Art Gallery of Mississauga, the Art Gallery of Hamilton, Price Waterhouse Toronto, the University of Lethbridge, Alberta, and the Canada Council Art Bank.
