ANNE GRIFFITHS

Canadian

Anne Griffiths is a Canadian painter based in Victoria, British Columbia. She studied painting at Emily Carr University in Vancouver and has a diploma in design and illustration (1986) from Capilano University's IDEA Program. Post graduation, Anne had a successful 20-year career as an art director, designer and illustrator for an international roster of clients in several of Vancouver's prominent design firms.

In 2011 Anne shifted her creative focus to a full-time painting practice, building upon her experience, and pivoting from professional to imaginative realms. Her studio practice fixates on the interplay of colour and form, indulging in expansive colour palettes and intuitively exploring landscapes. Just as Anne has moved through a variety of disciplines, so her paintings beget a similar evolutionary flow — shifting dimensions and spatial relationships build new places for the viewer to gaze upon, wander through or contemplate.

Griffiths' paintings seamlessly shift from landscapes to abstractions, from impressionism to modernism. What emerges is a distinct style of her own - one which articulates the landscapes of Canada through a contemporary lens. She draws with her paint strokes: the marks are visible, connecting the viewer to the process. The oil paint becomes lifelike in its visibility - visceral. The paintings with vertical lines feel like a curtain of rain or forest tapestry. The combination of vertical and horizontal strokes differentiates the horizon line, making the viewer feel like they are walking through a forest. The work is done intuitively based on the natural environment on Vancouver Island, where Griffiths lives and works.

Anne's work has been shown in Canada, the UK and Europe in both solo and group shows, and has been placed in numerous private and corporate collections. Most recently her work was selected for group shows in Paris, Berlin and London, and exhibited in both group and solo shows in Vancouver, London, Copenhagen and Turin in 2025.

“Painting is often obsessed with labels: abstraction, minimalism, landscape, impressionist, modernist, and so on. But what about the paintings that don’t fit the confines of art speak jargon? To me, these are the best paintings, ones that defy easy categorization; that are contemporary in their condensation of the past into something distinct. This, in a nutshell, is what makes Anne Griffiths’s paintings so great—they seamlessly shift from landscapes to abstractions, from modernism to impressionism. Griffiths’s painterly influences vary: the brushstrokes resemble those of Clyfford Still, the slivers of raw canvas invoke David Milne, while the intuitiveness of Griffiths’s way of working reminds one of Peter Doig. What emerges is a distinct style of her own, one which articulates the landscapes of Canada with a contemporary lens.”—
