NICOLE KATSURAS

Nicole Katsuras studied at the University of Toronto and received her Bachelor of Arts degree with Honours. Nicole continued her studies abroad and graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from University of London, Central Saint Martins School of Art and Design in the United Kingdom.

After completing her master's degree in the UK, Nicole returned to Toronto to work as a full-time painter. She has exhibited in Toronto, London, Seoul, and Paris. Her work is part of both private and public collections across North America and in Europe.

Katsuras' paintings are uniquely innovative – she is one of the early pioneers of a technique that involves using an improvised system of irregular mark-making tools to apply oil paint onto the surface of the canvas. Katsuras' paintings are full of paradox and influence - painterly gestures are taken from a diverse span of genres from still-life to portraiture to create figure-ground relationships which can be experienced as both objects in space and as an ethereality that is open to personal meaning. Katsuras' more recent work features a series of bold compositional and chromatic ideas that she has been focusing on since 2007.
